

One way to help yourself feel better is to do something kind for someone else. Engage in acts of kindness and generosity for loved ones, friends, or even strangers. As you do some of these activities, notice how you feel and then come back to this page to write about the experiences and how they impacted your mood.
